Simple Box

A. Just enclose with a solid line.

> It is just a frame surrounded by a slightly thick line. A simple monochrome design might be fine, but when you want a gorgeous look, it's a bit unsatisfactory.

B. Rounded Corner

> We changed the color and made the corners round. Change the text color, line color, and roundness of the corners as necessary.

C. Background Fill

> I tried to fill the background without using lines. Please change the background color to your liking.

D. Only Top and Bottom Line

> In addition to filling, I added thicker lines to the top and bottom. It is important to choose a color that is compatible with the lines and background.

E. Double Line Border

> A double-lined frame. You can create it by specifying multiple "borderline". The last argument in `borderline` is essentially work the same as `tikz` options.

F. Dashed Box

> I made the surrounding frame a broken line. Change the line thickness to your liking (just adjust the first argument in `borderline`).

G. Left and Right Double Line

> I tried adding a double line only to the left and right. We recommend changing the color according to your document design.

H. Thick Line Only to the left

> It is a sticky note box design. You may use it to write important points or supplementary notes in the article.

I. Thick line only on top

> This is the case when I added a line only to the top. The point is to put together the background and line/character colors in the same system color overall.

J. If You Cast a Shadow...

> It looks like a little floating with a shadow. Although it has a mint color scheme, the background may be white or gray.

K. Smart Design

> The box area is made visible by the shadow instead of the border. The top line may be placed on the left (replace border-top with border-left).

L. Thick Board Style

> The underline is slightly darker than the background to express the thickness. The neck is that it looks a little like a button.

M. Thick Board with Shadow

> I added a shadow to give it a more three-dimensional appearance. It's a little flashy, so it might be good to use it on the part you really want to stand out.
